DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This is a tall, three story brick corner building, seven bays wide on the Market Street side and two bays on the Patrick Street side. The high first story is faced and trimmed with granite and the upper stories are faced with a tan colored brick with rusticated joints. Rear areas are of regular brick and all are laid in common bond. The N. E. corner of the building has been angled forming another bay to hold the entranceway. The door is set in a newer, modern glass and metal enclosure, enframed by a granite surround and topped by a flat, molded entablature. The frieze is adorned with a long panel with end blocks carved with roundels. This is topped by a round, arched window like those of the side bays and capped by a console decorated by an inverted acanthus leaf. On either side of this doorway stands a stone base with a low pyramid point. Classic styled pendant "torches" are attached on either side of the doorway with round light globes. Side bays are divided into window panels except for a doorway to the upper stories in the left Market Street bay. These panels are separated by Italian Doric (Tuscan) pilasters with recessed centers, rising from the base wall to the architrave topped by a Fillet molding at the second story level. These window panels are of fairly large panes divided into four sections in height with corresponding side lights. The top most is round arched with radiating and rusticated granite voissiors, capped by a console bearing an inverted acanthus leaf. The side walls, corner bay and the left Market Street bay are rusticated. Upper story windows are 1/1 topped by a course of vertical stretchers across the building above the second and third story windows. This building has a flat roof fronted on two sides by a granite capped parapet. Just below this is a cantilevered cornice with cyma recta molding and trimmed by dentils and a granite band with pendant shields. Topping the parapet of the entrance bay and that of the left Market Street bay are low segmental pediments with pendant shields. The corner roofline is accented by a waving flag. This building rests on a fairly low foundation.
